WITH the hopes and aspirations of three long years standing about to reach their culmination, the Morning Senior Class must pause to examine its annals for the record of its achievement while undergoing the gradual gradation from "raw material" to "finished product."

Upon their advent, the class of Freshmen, surveying that which lay before them as a trial which they must experience in order to qualify for the Bar, manifested a determination to wade through their three-year course as quickly as the three years would allow. Thrilled at the thought of the law and possessing the impulse to assimilate a limitless fund of legal knowledge they lost no time in the development of a sound technique of case study and the bending of every effort toward properly equipping themselves to meet professional competition, either because mere self-interest dictated such action, or because of the high standard of scholastic attainment prescribed.

After acclimating themselves with easy adaptability to the scholastic routine, the legal neophytes took unto themselves a set of officers which included Joseph A. Carlucci, President, Nathaniel L. Sunshine, Vice President, Eldon Mills, Secretary, Louis Winer, Treasurer, and Harold Gurevitz, Student Council Representative.

The spirit of the group embodied an intimate association of the components of the class, abetted by a sense of understanding, friendship and real comradeship which seemed to permeate their entire intercourse. Their effervescent spirit assumed its most concrete expression in the promotion of a dance at the Elisabeth Town and Country Club, which proved to be an evening replete with enjoyment, and the witnessing of the class en masse of Ed Wynne in "The Laugh Parade," a presentation rivaling in subtlety the famed Tycoon wit.
In the Junior Year, the destinies of the class were modestly and efficiently directed by the executive officer Eldon Mills. Other officers were Ernest J. Tomac, Vice President, Louis Schwartz, Secretary, Arne Brogger, later succeeded by Louis Greenstone, as Student Council Representative, and Louis Winer, who was re-elected to take charge of the dispersion of class funds.

Having duly survived the rigors of the year of initiation, the students, with steadfast courage born of ambition, again assiduously devoted themselves to the routine of prescribed courses. But now they lifted their vision from the road under their feet and looked forward—determined to keep a firm footing on the road which led to the much heralded realm—that of the Seniors.

While possessing a cordial intimacy toward one another, the classmates manifested a keen interest in affairs of the school world. This led to spirited activity on the part of Milton Yarrow, Eldon Mills, Joseph A. Carlucci which merited their election to the Seal and Scroll Society. Meanwhile, the class exhibited its social inclination by making merry at the Blue Hills Plantation and attending a theatre in New York City, all of which bred a community of interest indicative of a friendly, felicitous atmosphere.

The realization that they were about to enter the portals of the Senior Class and assume the responsibilities incumbent upon the elders of the school impelled an intensification of their interest in extra-curricular activity and stimulated them to spirited participation in the election of officers. Louis Schwartz was chosen as President, and those who assisted him in contributing purposeful direction to the activities of the class were Alphonse S. Rizzolo, the Vice President, W. Adriance Kipp, Jr., the scribe, Robert Inlander, who administered the exchequer, and Henry W. Decker, who represented the class in Council Deliberations.

Diligent and economical planning on the part of the administration and commendable co-operation on the part of the class resulted in the successful sponsorship of three social functions.

Seeking to focus the thought of the school on the ideal of a better understanding between class divisions, the Morning and Evening Seniors collaborated in sponsoring a dance at the Hotel Rivera which was to their mutual satisfaction and advantage. The occasion will well be remembered by those in attendance.

Predicated upon this successful enterprise, a gala affair in the form of a dinner dance was held at the Club Evergreen. Soon afterward, in the midst of graduation happiness, the students revealed, with touching emphasis, their qualities of sincere friendship by convening at the Graduation Dance.

Thus with the parade of its scholastic activities drawing to a close, the Senior Morning Class prepares to follow the destinies which Fate has decreed. The sages have said, "What is written, is written." But strengthened by the progressive spirit with which they have become imbued while attending the Law School, and realizing that they will appreciate for many years the fine influences to which they were subject while under the tutorship of an interested faculty, the Class supplements this with a phrase of its own, "If it is not written, we'll write it!"

LOUIS SCHWARTZ.
JOY does not remain forever! Our happy days in the training of the law have ended. Now that the final hours have flown into the realm of the past, we are most deeply impressed with the fact that the envied superiority of the Senior is too quickly attained, and is too quickly written in history.

It was in September of 1931 when we first met, and a day that deserves a niche in the archives of history. Proud but meek, we entered the portals of the New Jersey Law School. Meek because Blackstone seemed a mere myth to us, but yet proud because afar off somewhere beyond the horizon we visualized a picture of standing before a jury pleading for our client.

After a few weeks of listening to Dean Harris expounding to us the many number of crimes one can commit in New Jersey [of course paying the penalty], we decided to organize. The result of our endeavors found Saul O. Sherr, elected President; William E. Reid, Vice President; Hyman Rosenberg, Treasurer; Raymond Becker, Secretary; and Irving J. Engleman, Student Council Representative.

Mid-terms arrived, passed, and were not forgotten. However, our first social affair did much to ease the strain. The Elizabeth Town and Country Club was the place, and our classmates, the Morning and Evening Freshmen, joined us. Much rejoicing reigned.

After considerable cramming, the mid-terms still fresh in our minds, the finals were eventually conquered. With many a sigh of relief, some of us departed to the shores and the mountains, while still others found, much to their regret, what the inside of a law office looked like.

All good things must come to an end, and October found us once again returning to the Law School. By this time we were well acquainted with one another, and the coming election was looked forward to by all. The final count found Saul O. Sherr elected President; Alfred R. Plager, Vice President; Milton Miller, Secretary; Edward Rubinstein, Treasurer; and Irving V. Engleman, once again elected Student Council Representative.

Mid-terms were once again encountered, and for some unknown reason, and we proudly relate this, mortalities were few.

The Junior Prom was the outstanding social event of the year. It was held at the Meadow Brook Country Club and even the weather, which one can easily find at the North Pole, failed to dampen the spirit of the merry makers.

In early May, being optimists, we launched a real political battle for election of the Senior Officers for the following year. Perhaps we caught the spirit of house cleaning from the Newark City Commission election, as all of the incumbents in office were defeated, with the exception of Saul O. Scher, who declined to run, he having been elected President of the Student Council for the Senior Year. The outcome of the election found Joseph F. Zeller, President; John Gillies, Vice President; Louis Chodas, Secretary; Isadore Steiker, Treasurer; and Nathaniel L. Sunshine, Student Council Representative. Irving J. Engleman, who had been Student Council Representative for two years, was elected Secretary of the Student Council by that body. Thus the Senior Afternoon Class was assured of being well represented on the legislative body of the school, having four of its members on the Council.

Another period of cramming and our ship sailed through a rough and stormy final. Then the customary partings and off to a much welcomed vacation.

We roused ourselves once again from the lethargy of summer, and the fall of 1933 found us in the role of dignified Seniors.

The social event of the year was the Senior Afternoon Dinner Dance at the Club Evergreen. It will long be remembered as a very enjoyable event.

And now the day of departure, as well as the day of triumph, has arrived. We stand at the parting of the ways. Each of us will go his way, fortified by the knowledge we have received at New Jersey Law School, and with that knowledge we will conquer.

As a parting word, let us say "to all Professors and Instructors, we are forever indebted for your sympathetic assistance and the noble standards you have endeavored to set before us."

JOSEPH F. ZELLER.
1931. We stood at the foot of a mighty mountain, bewildered, awe-struck, perhaps even a little afraid. Behind us lay the gradual sloping hills which we had climbed in preparation for this, our greatest task. Grammar School, High School, College—all this was over and now we stood, anxiously, eagerly, trying to pierce the cloud-enveloped summit of this mountain which to most of us spelled "CAREER."

The ascent began. Slowly, painfully, we climbed, warily side-stepping the many pitfalls laid to catch the too eager traveler, and before a month had gone our unorganized group had been converted into a semblance of unity with Joseph R. O'Connor as our President; Edward E. Barker, Vice President; Bernard Walsh, Treasurer; Isaacson, Secretary; and Joseph V. Suter, Student Council Representative.

The going became rougher. Here and there a man would fall by the wayside, but those who survived struggled on undaunted by the unhappy fate of those left behind. With the year nearly over we in our labors to enjoy the welcome reprieve afforded by a dance given at the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, and that dance is still remembered as one of the bright spots of that first hectic year.

1932. A new year, new confidence, renewed energy. Reorganization is more rapid and choose as our leaders, Benjamin B. Ginsburg, President; Bernard Walsh, Vice President; Isadore Steiker (who was later succeeded by Joseph E. Cohen, when he deserted our ranks to join the Afternoon Class), Treasurer; Isaacson, Secretary; and Jack Simon, Student Council Representative.

The debating ability of the class becomes apparent early and the team of Edward E. Barker, Joseph R. O'Connor, and Albert G. Silverman easily captures the inter-class debating honors. In that year too, Milton D. Valentine becomes a member of the Varsity Debating Team.

The class is further honored by its members chosen for front-rank positions in the extra-curricular activity of the school.

Six members of the Class are elected to the Saol and Scroll Society. They are Milton C. Teader, Jack Simon, Benjamin B. Ginsburg, William E. Reid, Arne Brogger, and Bernard Walsh. That body elected Milton C. Teader, Master of the Seals; Jack Simon, Deputy Master of the Seals; Benjamin B. Ginsburg, Keeper of the Scroll. Milton C. Teader edited the 1932-33 issue of the "Lex Loel." William E. Reid is elected by the Student Council as Editor-in-Chief of the 1934 Legacy," and Milton C. Teader is elected Business Manager of that publication. Bernard Walsh becomes Circulation Manager of "The Barrister."

While those mentioned in the foregoing, immediately preceding, are making their niche in the school's "Hall of Fame," the rest of the Class are not inactive. Three Class affairs give us an opportunity to forget for a time, at least, the strenuous work still ahead.

1933. We are Seniors! The top of the mountain can be faintly seen, still enshrouded in mist, but not nearly the mystery it had seemed three years before. Benjamin B. Ginsburg still leads our class as President. He is ably assisted by Edward E. Barker, Vice President; Leon Neidorf, Treasurer; Edna Medresh, Secretary; and Jack Simon, Student Council Representative.

Again, in debating Milton D. Valentine participates as a member of the Varsity Debating Team. Another member of the Class has joined him however, to share his honors. Edward E. Barker left his place on the Senior Class Debating Team to become a member of the Varsity Debating Team.

To William E. Reid goes the honor of editing the "Legacy" of the 1934 Class of New Jersey Law School, and to Milton C. Teader goes the honor of being his Business Manager. Bernard Walsh is chosen as Business Manager of "The Barrister."

This year the Class in conjunction with the Senior Morning Class held, for the first social function of the year, a dance at the Hotel Riviera in Newark. It is, perhaps.
needless to comment here of the fine spirit that prevailed, and the enjoyment had by all in attendance. An affair at the Delta Theta Phi Fraternity House will long be remembered as a gala time. The Combined Senior Class Dance is, no doubt, the most prominent from the standpoint of social success.

The end is in sight. The clouds have disappeared; the sun has broken through, and now we stand on the summit, looking back on the road we have just travelled, a trifle regretfully, a bit sorrowfully, but ready at last to face whatever lies before us. In parting may we express to Dean Harris and to our faculty our grateful appreciation for their untiring efforts in our behalf, for their patience with our mistakes, and for their wise counsel in times of need.

MILTON D. VALENTINE.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

NEW JERSEY LAW SCHOOL
NEWARK, N.J.

April 10, 1936

Mr. William B. Held, Editor of The Legacy
New Jersey Law School
60 Aurora Street
Newark, New Jersey

Dear Mr. Held:

Last evening's Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Dinner marked the high spot in New Jersey Law School Annual Functions. It was in every way inspiring. The undergraduate participation, the induction of the fifteen candidates into the bar, and speaking, was one of the most enjoyable and impressive parts of the ceremony.

When I look at Dean Harris' compilation of graduates and their occupations, I cannot but feel that there must be good things in store for the members of the Class of 1906. The message I should like to give to your Class at this time is to preserve a sense, progressive courage. The world is not going to the bad, although we have had more reason than ever before to think so during the last four years. Generally, we all agree we are much better off than we were a year ago. There will still be opportunities, the bigger ones going to those who are best prepared. I sincerely hope your Class may have its share of openings in the legal profession, which will help swell Dean Harris' list when he compiles it again for our thirty-fifth anniversary.

Sincerely yours,

LEGACY 1934 [40]
March 26, 1934

Mr. William Reid
Editor-In-Chief, "The Legacy"
New Jersey Law School
Newark, New Jersey

Dear Bill:

The first quarter century of the New Jersey Law School, which we have this year been signalizing with appropriate ceremonies, has given us a responsibility and an opportunity of which we are all deeply conscious.

In saying good-bye to the Class of 1924 as they go forth to take their places in many and varied fields, I cannot but feel that they, when another quarter century shall have rolled around, will be bearing the brunt of affairs, while those now at the helm will have passed on, or given way.

I hope all will do their part manfully, both in the world of affairs and in their narrower spheres as alumni of this school. If we can ever serve them, they have but to call upon us.

Sincerely,

[Signature]
