The "mouthpiece" for the future "mouthpieces" is the Student Bar Association. It includes a body of six students elected from the three classes as well as the President and Vice-President of each class. The Student Bar Association serves as coordinator of student affairs and as a liaison between the student body and the administration.

The primary goal of this organization is to promote the interest of the student body in all spheres of law school life and to help provide an atmosphere which will be conducive to the molding of fine lawyers. This, of course, includes a well rounded program of educational, social and benevolent activities.

This year saw the increased participation by Rutgers in the American Law Student Association, the formation of the Law Wives' Club and the presentation of three excellent symposium programs.

Other highlights included the freshman welcome party, the gala dinner-dance, the extensive Law Day program and the anxiously awaited end of the year dance.
Membership on the Law Review staff is bestowed on students exhibiting high scholastic standing, extreme care in problem analysis and research, and writing ability. The top students in each marking period are invited to compete for Law Review positions by writing case comments that are judged by the editorial board.

Although sponsored by the Law School and aided by the Faculty, the primary responsibility for its perspective and content rests with the Board of Student Editors. The Review is published four times a year and devotes one issue to a Survey of New Jersey law. Within the Review appears critical opinion which the Review hopes will provide a means for development of the law. For, to nurture understanding and provide an impetus for legal development is the goal of the Review.

The Review is not only a vehicle for thought provocation in the legal profession but a great educational experience for the students.

RAYMOND DeRIDDER
Chairman

The Moot Court Board, presently composed of four seniors and eight underclassmen selected by the Dean, administers the Appellate Moot Court and Trial Presentation programs. These two programs give the student an opportunity to develop practical skills and to apply the legal theory which he has learned throughout law school to an actual case.

The effective running of the programs involves a great amount of work by the Board. It includes selecting and writing cases; obtaining records; distributing records; preparing the calendar; obtaining judges and juries. However, such is a profitable educational experience for Board members.

Under the auspices of the Board the National Moot Court Team is selected to represent Rutgers Law School. This year David Friedland, Justin Walder and John Yacovelle successfully reached the National Finals, where their brief received second place recognition in the country.

DAVID FRIEDLAND
LEGAL AID BOARD

The Legal Aid Board has been established to administer the law school's legal aid program. It is composed of six upperclassmen selected by the Dean.

Under the program law students cooperate with the Essex County Legal Aid Society by spending time in the Society's office, aiding an attorney in providing legal assistance for people who need help but cannot afford independent counsel.

The Legal Aid program gives students valuable experience in handling actual cases; helps develop their creative skills, techniques and mental habits; fosters a sense of responsibility to client, court, profession and the community. It introduces students to practical problems and techniques of fact gathering, steps in a legal plan of attack and methods of dealing with a client.

Each year the Senior Class with the assistance of the Student Bar Association and advertisers edits and publishes a yearbook, the Legacy. Within its covers is a presentation in print and pictorial form of the experiences shared and the people with whom we have shared them at Rutgers Law School.

With the assistance of members of the three classes the staff presents this yearbook to you. We hope that you will find the 1961 Legacy to be an enjoyable link between the past and the future.

King's Bench, local legal fraternity, was founded by a group of fifteen Rutgers men in 1948. Embodied within its Constitution are the aims of the founders to crystallize not only friendship, but an ideal of mutual understanding regardless of race and religion. Through the activities of the fraternity these goals are translated from theory into practice.

The fraternity emphasizes not only the social but also the intellectual advancement of its members. It conducts social activities at which fraternity brothers have an opportunity to meet the faculty and discuss legal matters on an informal basis. The activities sponsored include two annual picnics, house parties and the induction banquet where an outstanding speaker is brought before the membership.

Under the guidance of Dean C. Willard Heckel, the faculty advisor, King's Bench continues to advance its aims under the banner of brotherhood.

Phi Alpha Delta is the nation's largest legal fraternity. It was founded as a local fraternity in 1933 and received its national charter in 1965.

The purpose of the fraternity include forming a bond among its members, establishing a link with the alumni, promoting social and intellectual intercourse with its members; and fostering, under the influence of these friendships, those principles that tend to form a higher type of manhood. Each chapter endeavors to fulfill these purposes and to promote the welfare of Rutgers Law School.

I don’t have any answers. You tell me what you think.

It’s obviously forseeable, not hindsight, Cousin.

Now let’s see, Reverse Eric, apply Byrd, consider the zoning ordinance and then concurrently plunge Parrott.

Robert Guida, looking甲. What is this—a gaming salon?

Marbles, bowling balls! What is this—a gaming salon?

The word is AT-TY-TEIDE.

No problem at all.

You’ll have to paint the tree first before you examine the woods.

I wouldn’t give a continental.
The Law

Long before the count began,
Man had no need of law.
His land was his, his hand was his.
Then, he began to know the land.
He had reached the end of knowing.
Soon he knew the limits of soil.
Such was his and so much yours.
His became much more than mine,
And mine much more than his.
Noone said "What shall you find".
Noone said "Don't look behind".
We have been counting since.
More concerned with loss than gain.
Now shall you know the law.
The retreating fear of soil.
Those who have none may seek with equal right.
Those who shall have may retain with equal right.
You have been walking wind-borne, among the counters seeking none.
