The Lawyers' Ways

I've been list'nin' to them lawyers,
In the court-house up the street,
An' I've come to the conclusion
That I'm most completely beat.
Past one feller ric to argy,
An' he boldly waded in
And he 'dressed the tremblin' priz'ner
In a coat o' deep-dyed sin.

Why, he painted him all over
In a hue o' blackest crime,
An' he smeared his reputation
With the thickest kind o' grime,
Tell I found myself a-sayin',
In a misty way an' dim,
How the Lord had come to fashion
Such an awful man as him.

Then the other lawyer started,
An', with brimin', tearful eyes,
Said his client was a martyr
That was brought to sacrifice,
An' he give to that same priz'ner
Every blessed human grace,
Tell I saw the light of virtue
Fairly shin'in' from his face.

Then I owned 'at I was puzzled
How such things could rightly be;
An' this aggeratin' question
Seems to keep a-puzzlin' me.
So, will someone please inform me,
An' this mystery unroll
How an angel an' a devil
Can possess the same soul!

EXCHANGE.

[36]
February 21, 1928.

I am pleased at being afforded an opportunity to greet the students and alumni of the New Jersey Law School through the pages of "The Legacy".

Contact with the world and the practice of his profession brings to the alumnus of the New Jersey Law School an appreciation of the rich endowment which is his because of the influences and training of the School.

"The Legacy" furnishes an additional stimulus to that pride in our Alma Mater and loyalty to her standards and ideals which are attributes essential to the success of both student and alumnus.

Very truly,

Governor.
Damn the Secretary!

The Time: Shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon.
The Place: Lounge room in the New Jersey Law School Alumni Building.
The Characters:

John DeMurrer -------- Class 1909
George Torr ------------- Class 1911
"Doc" Interleaver ------- Alumni Secretary

John and George enter smoking room of the Alumni Building and find "Doc" seated comfortably before a large fireplace; "Hello, Doc, old man, how's the Alumni Association coming?"

"Things are going great, boys; the hundred per cent membership mark will soon be reached."

"That reminds me," said George; "I have been wondering what became of many of my former classmates. You, if anyone, should be able to acquaint us with the doings of the leading lights of our Alumni."

"Go ahead and shoot, George; I'll do the best I can to enlighten you," volunteered "Doc."

"Who in your estimation is the big gun in our association?"

"Well, I can't answer that question specifically, as we have quite a few. Take for instance our Governor, A. Harry Moore; Joseph Fitzpatrick, who is Secretary of State; Professors Harris and Sorg, who are members of our school faculty, and John Matthews. Oh, there are any number who have made the mark in the legal circles of this State."

"Well, then, suppose we go over them class by class. It would be interesting to know where they are and what they are doing."

"It's O.K. with me, if you boys have an hour or so to spend. Wait till I get my handbook and I'll tell you all about them."

Seated closely together on a lounge, the three begin to go over the pages of "Doc's" book. "Here we are, the Class of 1909, the first graduating class of our institution. You were a member of that class, John."

"Here's Alfred Brenner for a starter. He was an honor man in his class for the entire course. Where were you, John? 'Al' was appointed City Attorney for Bayonne in 1916 and served in that capacity until 1920, when he was appointed Judge of the Bayonne District Court, where he was active for five years."

"What's he doing now?"

"He is engaged in the practice, now being a member of the firm of Brenner & Kreach, with offices in Bayonne. Here's Henry J. Weiner, another member of your class, John."

"I remember him all right. He was so short that he could slide down in his seat and the professors never could see him to call him up for a case. What's he up to?"

"He is practicing in Elizabeth and is also counsel for the Board of Education in the city of Linden."

"Let's turn over and see what the Class of 1910 has in the way of talent."

"Well, to start with, here's the school's first Portia, Laura Mayo Wilson. She is practicing in Newark and has her office in the Prudential Building. Speaking of leading lights, here's one for you, George—John F. Murray, Jr., Commissioner of the City of Newark in charge of the Department of Public Works. He was admitted to the Bar in 1911 and carries on his practice from his office at 750 Broad Street, in Newark."

"Here's one of the most distinguished practitioners in the State who was a Class of 1910 man, John A. Matthews. Besides being successful before the Bar of Justice, he is a member of the faculty at Mercer-Beasley Law School, Assistant Counsel to the North Jersey Water Board, and was formerly a member of the New Jersey Legislature."

"Anyone from Hudson County among the 1910 men?"

"Yes, here is James A. Butler, who is Judge of one of the Municipal Courts of Jersey City. The juvenile delinquents of that city are well acquainted with him."

"Another member of the class that deserted his native State altogether is E. Morgan Barradale. He graduated with honors and taught in our Alma Mater for a short time. Now he is engaged in practice in New York City and has attained an enviable record as Secretary to the New York State Tunnel Commission."

"But let's get on, as the time's going by, and see what 1911 has to say for itself," chimed in George."

"Here's another fair lady, Paula Laddley. She is prominent in women's business clubs throughout the state and was for years assistant probation officer in Newark. She is now practicing from her offices in the Union Building, in Newark."

"Andrew Whinery came down here from Cornell University. He is a member of the State Republican Committee and Chairman of the East Orange Republican Committee. His offices are located at 750 Broad Street, in Newark."

"1911 seems well supplied with judges. Michael F. Judge is sitting in the East Orange District Court and Louis R. Freund is serving his second term as Judge of the Second District Court of Newark, while John Larkin Hughes is Chairman of the Township Committee of New Providence, N. J., Counsel for the Board of Health of Summit, N. J., and Counsel for the Citizens' Trust Company of the same city."

"What's 1912 got on the record? That was a great Democratic year."

"Howard S. Dodd is a man we all go to see now and then in our business. He is serving his second term as Registrar of Deeds in Essex County."

"Here's a topnotcher in the practice, 'Johnny,' John McGeehan, Jr. He was an honor man in his class and also on his Bar examinations. He certainly has made his presence felt in the courts of this State."

"Guess you come in contact with Leslie Johnson over at the Fidelity Union Title and Mortgage Guarantee Trust Co., in your business, don't you, George?"

"Yes, he's one of the assistant title officers over there. And, by the way, I met a gentleman yesterday, one Orlando Dey. He's Recorder for the City of Rahway. He confessed that he is a 1912 Alumnus of our institution. Very fine man."

"Haven't much dope on the 1913 class. Henry J. Goss is Deputy Commissioner of the New Jersey Workmen's Compensation Bureau and Isa. C. Moore, who is practicing here in Newark, are the only ones. I wish some more of that class would write in."

"Right here is the odd bit of information in my Alumni book. Judge Edward Dillon of the Montclair District Court was the only member of the Class of 1914. Quite a distinction, that."

"How did that come about, 'Doc'?"

"Well, in that year the course was extended from two years to three years, as near as I can find out. But let's get on. 1915 has a list of men that equals the best of them."
“Judge Walter Van Riper graduated in that class, didn’t he, ‘Doc?’”

“Yes, he was. He was one of the officers of the West Orange Trust Company and Judge on the Common Pleas Bench of Essex County.”

“He was recently spoken of with favor as a Republican candidate for the nomination of Governor.”

“Yes, he was; but let’s not air our politics now. Strange as it may seem, one of his classmates succeeded him to the Assistant United States District Attorneyship. Fred G. Herrigel, Jr. is now in that position. Look at this list: Harold S. Cloos, Edward Griffin, Frank H. Higgins, Klemmer Kaltenstein, Wesley Benner, Joseph L. Loehr, William F. McCloskey, and Bernard V. McGovern, all 1915 men and actively practicing the law.”

“They are a real credit to our institution, Doc.”

“John Anserman and Lloyd Beatty also were 1915 men. John is a title officer in the Prudential Insurance Company’s legal department and Lloyd is practicing here in Newark when not engaged in acting as the Mayor of Union.”

“The former served as Assemblyman from Essex County in 1927, while the latter is Police Magistrate in Irvington, New Jersey. John W. Palmer is a member of the firm of Palmer & Cooper in Newark and has an enviable record as a trial attorney.”

“Let’s see what 1917 has, Doc?”

“Well, here’s John C. Howe, who is one of the most capable police court judges in the city and a director in several banks. Then William George has made a name for himself with the Policemen’s Benevolent Association and as an Assistant Prosecutor in Hudson County. James B. Purser was formerly Mayor of Rahway, New Jersey, and is actively practicing in Union County.”

“To be sure. Three at present are graduates. George S. Harris graduated with honors in 1922. The 1924 for many years professor of English in Montclair, N. J., High School. His case books in ‘Crimes’ and ‘New Jersey Statutes’ are well known to the students in our institution and his latest work, entitled ‘Pleading and Practice in New Jersey,’ is respected as the best treatise of the subject ever produced in this state.”

“Next in line is H. Theodore Sorg, who graduated ten years before Professor Harris.”

“Doc, he was great at putting over his real property course, wasn’t he?”

“You’re right, George, but that isn’t his only accomplishment. I recently discovered that he is linked up with church work and is President of the New Jersey Baptist.”

“Reginald Parnell, who graduated last June, won the teaching scholarship and has been teaching Common Law Pleading this year, a subject we all loved so well. ‘Reg’ graduated from Bishop Field’s College, St. John’s and King’s University and was ordained a deacon of the Anglican Church. He’s making our wonderful faculty well, I’m told, and is at present connected with the office of Harrison & Roche in Newark.”

“Governor Moore, as you well know, graduated in the Class of 1924 and I need make no mention of his record. He speaks for itself. He is a very interested member of the Alumni in all school activities. Would they were all as interested as he!”

“Joseph Fitzpatrick, now Secretary of State, also graduated in the same class as the Governor. Last year he was a member of the Faculty, teaching the subject of Domestic Relations.”

“Let’s see, Doc, what class did we stop at? Class of 1917, wasn’t it? It was during the year of 1918 that the enrollment of the school fell off considerably because of the war.”

“Got any data on the graduates who were in the World War? Yes, there are five gold stars in the school’s service flag. Our Alma Mater has the distinction of having had the first American lawyer to be killed in the great war. Lieutenant John Mon- tieth, Jr., was his name. He was an honor man during his entire course and a member of the Class of 1916. Immediately on the United States’ entry into the war he enlisted in the aviation corps and met his death when his plane fell at a training field. Captain William W. Jones was killed shortly before the Armistice when a German shell exploded in a trench where he was in command. Louis J. Croll, Class of 1915, Felix R. Smith, Class of 1917, and James V. Marzano, Class of 1918, were the other graduates who gave up their lives for the cause of Democracy and Justice.”

“You have seen the tablet in the school foyer erected to their memory by the students and Faculty?”

“Yes, and it is a just and fitting tribute to those who saw their duty and answered the call.”

“As the hour grows late, we must hurry over the remaining years. 1918 furnished quite a batch of prominent graduates. Judge James I. Bowan, better known as ‘the youngest Judge in New Jersey,’ is presiding over the First District Court of Somerset County. ‘Jim’ also served a term as Prosecutor of the Pleas.”

“Russell Fleming is practicing in Newark and is President of the Rutgers Club of Newark. Joseph Breslow is clerk of the First Criminal Court in Newark.”

“In 1919 Selin A. Gallier graduated. He is an assistant solicitor for the Prudential Insurance Company.”

“The 1920 Class has Louis J. Auerbach, who is a member of the Passaic Valley School Board, and a member of the Commission, while Wallace Welch managed to study away from the practice of the law and became the Editor of the ‘Commercial Law Review.’ Carl Freges, Paul Ewing, and James L. McKenna are all active members of the New Jersey Bar.”

“How about the ‘prominent’ from Hudson County? Most all you’ve told us about come from Essex.”

“Shades of Caesar’s ghost! Didn’t you get enough of Hudson County when you took the late Dean Mason’s Equity course? Just a minute now and we’ll come to some of them.”

“The Class of 1922’s list is topped by Arthur Baier, who is practicing in Morristown. Next come the Bero brothers of Newark. They have more or less a pre-Volscad tinge with that name, but they’re very successful in practice. August Hoch, Jerome B. McKenna, John Respond, and John Weigand are all making a success of their efforts in Essex. Essex seems to be a favorite somehow.”

“The 1923 Class list shows that Harry Pin, who was formerly a member of the Class of 1909, returned after fourteen years to receive his degree. He was recently elected as one of the Alumni representatives to the Student Council.”

“Dr. Percy De Stanley, Henry Sorenson, M. Francis Keating, and James F. O’Brien are all practicing in Newark, while George R. Walsh has located in Elizabethtown.”

“Harry Howerton, Jr., who graduated with the Class of ’24, is a title officer for the Fidelity Union Title and Mortgage Guaranty Company, in Newark.”
Maher is practicing in Newark, as are Harold Gacogne and Joseph S. Lindbury. J. J. Smith is practicing down Elizabeth way.

"That brings us down to 1925. Here we find John Francis, who was recently elected as an Alumni representative to the Student Council and is trial attorney for the Commercial Casualty and Insurance Company in Newark.""Irving Y. Gidley and Harold Burden are practicing in Elizabeth, William McCormick is up in Orange and Emil Herrigel, Peter L. Hughes, Jr., George R. Jackson and Fred Von Hof are all practicing in Newark."

"A Hudson County man hones the horizon at last, John Paul Duffy. Guess there’s a good many graduates remember how his attendants patrolled the examination rooms when he had charge of them over at school. Paul is practicing in Jersey City."

"Way down in South Jersey we have Oscar LeWine, who is practicing in Atlantic City. Harry Young, another 1924 man, is practicing in Newark."

"Chester Rothfuss, who graduated in 1926, passed the Bar examination with honors and did not have to take the oral examination which was then in vogue."

"Here’s the name of Erik Johansson. It was indeed a shock to all of his classmates to learn of his untimely death late November."

"Alphonso Gutter, who was president of the 1926 Senior Class, recently formed a partnership in Newark with Joseph Carr. Edward Turner, Edward O’Brien, and William Voce are all located around Market and Broad Streets in Newark, and Leonard Brown is connected with Judge Brennan up in Orange."

"Last year’s class has quite a few highlights in it. Charles Schmidt is Clerk of the Bergen County Criminal Court and Councilman in Maywood, New Jersey. Frank Scevoro was recently appointed Assistant Prosecutor of the Pleas in Morris County."

"Over in Hudson County, John, we have James J. Higgins, who passed the Bar with honors the May before he received his degree from school. "Jim" is connected with the Public Service."

"Raymond Scherder duplicated 'Jim' Higgins’ achievement. Ray was elected member of the Student Council and was president of the afternoon division. He is practicing in Newark, as is Hyman Goldstein, who was president of the Senior Evening Class."

"Is there anyone else you’d like to know about?"

"What became of Abague Hoc?" This from John, musingly.

"Never heard of him," says Doc.

"What, never heard of Professor Repply’s classroom pet?"

"Oh, damn these Alumni Secretaries, anyhow," chimed in George. "They never know anything about anyone you’re really interested in."

John and George made their exit, leaving Doc in an exasperated state of mind. Then, remembering a little poem he had recently read in a publication of his legal fraternity, he recited it over to himself.

"If the program is a bust,
Damn the Secretary:
Don’t help put the thing across,
Damn the Secretary;
If the grub’s not what you like,
Threaten to go on a strike:
Don’t help, for the love of Mike--
Damn the Secretary."

"If your club is on the bum
Damn the Secretary:
If your members will not come,
Damn the Secretary:
Don’t take hold and do your part,
Don’t help to give the thing a start,
Show ‘em all that you are smart,
Damn the Secretary."

THE MORAL: Back up your Alumni Association officers!

Adrien B. Hommell
New Jersey Law School Alumni Association

CONCURRENT with the planning of the Mason Memorial Fund this year came the first step towards the organization of a permanent Alumni Association.

At a banquet in January, to assist in raising the Mason Memorial Fund, temporary officers were chosen by those assembled.

Those chosen are:

Governor A. Harry Moore '24
President

George S. Harris '23
First Vice-President

Ira C. Moore, Jr., '13
Treasurer

Joseph C. Braelev '18
Second Vice-President

Rebecca Siegel '25
Recording Secretary

Adrian B. Hoppell '27
Executive Secretary

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

John F. Murray, Jr., '10
Samuel Kaufman '18
Alfred P. Brenner '09
Jocie James I. Bowes '19

Raymond Schroeder '27
Irene R. O'crowley '19
John A. Matthews '10
James J. Hoppell '27

Since that time Professor George S. Harris '23, who is First Vice-President of the Alumni Association, has chosen Joseph Braelev, Class of '18, and Raymond Schroeder, Class of '27, as Trustees of the Mason Memorial Fund.

It is hoped that the Memorial to the late Dean Mason will be unveiled before commencement and that at that time the first meeting of the newly formed Alumni Association will be held.

[46]
26. DASS IS ALLUS!

(Signed)________________________US________________________

<><>>

AFFIXED, SHELLACKED, CIRCULATED AND ANNOUNCED by the Senior Class of 1928, the Testator, as and for our Last Will and Testament, in our presence who in their presence and in the presence of each other (Presents! I'll give you), all the mob being and hanging around at the same time (E-emagine it!), hereby Hancock our cognomen.

R. I. LOQUITUR,
79 Twodanger Rule Street,
Hoboken, N. J.

C. EMPTOR,
41 Nil Road,
Guttenberg, N. J.

Signed—M. I.
Junior Morning Officers

CLASS OF '29

Benjamin B. H. Greenwood
President

Donald K. Cameron
Vice-President

Belle Winnik
Secretary

Edward Curran
Treasurer

Robert L. Howard
Class Representative
Junior Morning Class History

As we pass the milestones of life, so have we, the Class of '29, passed two of the milestones of scholastic achievement. Two short years ago, as we pondered the future, we entered the portals of New Jersey Law School in search of a professional training.

As we struggled along on that hard climb towards the first milestone of achievement in our chosen field, we found that, tho we were many and had many common thoughts, aims, needs, and desires, we had no organization. Realizing that "United we stand, divided we fall," we organized the Freshman Morning Class and elected Messrs. Robert L. Howard, President, and Donald P. Taylor, Vice-President; Miss Anna M. Horan, Secretary; Messrs. Lloyd J. Kelly, Treasurer, and Donald K. Cameron, Class Representative.

Among the innumerable class activities there are two which will go down not only as class history but as school history. The first was the formation of a medium through which interested students might discuss legal problems. Some of our classmates conceived the idea that we should have a club in which to tackle legal puzzles, and so started the Lexicon Club. Lexicon has since grown to be worthy of recognition and membership in it is looked upon as an honor.

The second outstanding achievement of our class originated in an attempt to improve class spirit. The Executive Council decided that the best medium thru which to accomplish their aim was by a newspaper, and the infant Barrister was brought forth. The Barrister was such a healthy infant that the Student Council of the school took it over and it is now known as the official school paper.

So, as we reached our first milestone and, on our return from vacation, started as the Junior Morning Class on our second climb, our numbers were somewhat depleted, but still whole and hearty. Since we already had some experience as a class, we realized the importance of class organization. At our earliest, we met and elected as our class officers: Benjamin Greenwood, President; Donald K. Cameron, Vice-President; Miss Belle Winnik, Secretary; Edward Curran, Treasurer, and Robert L. Howard, Class Representative.

It is always the custom of the Junior class at a college to run a Junior Prom and, not wishing to be the exception, we decided to run one too. Our President, in conference with the heads of the two other sections of the Junior Class of the School, decided to run a joint Prom. The arrangements were accepted by the class, and the Junior Prom, held on March 10, 1928, at the Robert Treat, was more successful than could be hoped for.

On January 12th, 1928, the Mason Memorial Fund Campaign was inaugurated, and soon after an appeal was made to the students, and, not to be outdone, our class subscribed 100%.

And so we leave you only to return again next year on the start of our last climb toward the milestone of graduation, and look forward to giving you another Legacy. It is our hope and ambition to at least equal the wonderful example set us by the Class of '27 and the Class of '28.

To those of the Senior Class who leave us to start on that long road to success, we extend our hearty congratulations and our best wishes for their speedy success—may God be with them!

Mitchell W. Marshall '29

"New times demand new measures and new men. The world advances and in time outgrows. The laws that in our fathers' day were best."
Junior Morning Class

Aron, Samuel D.
Aldric, Michael M.
Anand, Nathan Lester
Amrhein, John Jos.
Amsterdam, Harry Archibald, Arthur, Jr.
Astrum, Marguerite Sigrid
Barrett, Chas. S., Jr.
Barth, Benj.
Bauer, Moses A.
Behr, Myron I.
Bender, David Thomas
Benvenuti, Jos.
Berken, Eli
Bernstein, Lawrence
Bivona, Wm. Lewis
Bloom, Morris
Bober, Irving Lewis
Bolger, John
Bontempo, Anthony
Boin, Herman
Bratt, George, Jr.
Brewer, Maurice
Brown, Robert L.
Brown, Sidney S.
Brustin, Max
Cambutta, Wm. J.
Cameron, Donald K.
Campana, Rose
Cella, Rebella A.
Clarke, Matthew J.
Coddington, Augustus
Coe, Irvin B.
Cohen, Alexander
Cohen, Elias I.
Cohen, John J.
Cohen, Joseph
Coldwell, Romulus P.
Combs, Elaton F.
Courtney, James Mathias
Cowman, Bernard Howard
Cronson, Louis L.
Curran, Edward, Jr.
Daniel, C. Evan
Dimmore, Benj. Braddock, Jr.
Dipenstere, Nicholas
Ehrenberg, Frederick
Feldman, Nathan
Figuiredi, Daniel M.
Fish, Joseph
Foreman, Albert
Fox, Frederic James
Freda, Thomas J.
Freeman, George S.
Geltzeiler, David B.
Geltzeiler, Thuvah
Gindus, Nusin
Giovanolo, Attilio F.
Goldberg, Nathan N.
Goldfarb, Jacob
Goldstein, Saul M.
Goodman, George
Gordon, Mildred
Gornitzky, August
Gottlieb, Abraham H.
Gottschalk, Walter R.
Gray, Thomas
Greenwood, Benjamin
Griggs, John W. 2nd
Gross, Saul
Grossman, Bernard
Guarno, James
Guest, Russel
Halpern, Michael Harry Handelman, Henry
Harrigan, W. Alton
Heck, Leroy C.
Hein, Bernard
Heller, Bernard
Hirsch, Louis Irving
Hobart, George A.
Hosp, Charles M.
Howard, Robert L.
Jacobs, Sydney Lewis
Jacobsen, Louis C.
Jacobs, Everett F.
Jones, Willard M.
Kahn, Samuel
Kannerman, A. Mortimer
Kaplan, Eugene J.
Kaplan, Harold B.
Katz, Benjamin
Katz, Saul
Kell, Adele
Kennedy, William E.
Kenny, Joseph
Kirby, Edmund J.
Kimmel, Arthur
Klaesig, Frederick Kurt
Klein, Albert
Klein, Milton
Kleinman, Cecilia
Koch, Calvin S.
Klepowitz, Sidney Irving
Kovalyco, Edward Kramer, Julius
Krieger, Harald
Krupkin, William
Kupferman, Irene
Laks, Oscar
Lant, Carl Kalimira
Lawrence, Harry
Lebowitz, Louis
Leichter, Frank
Levin, Jacob
Levin, Samuel
Lippman, Robert P.
Lohman, John E.
Lunoff, Harry Maber, Paul
Mahl, Philip G.
Malwane, Isadore
Mansfield, Phillip
Marcus, Samuel
Marx, William
Markowitz, Harold Burton
Marks, Edward
Marschack, Mitchell W.
Mars, Samuel J.
McHugh, Veronica M.
Messina, Joseph
Miller, Isadore
Monaco, Nicholas
Moritz, Joseph
Moschitta, Philip
Moskow, Jacob
Newman, Nathaniel
Nixon, Vera
Oisherov, Benjamin
Pagano, John Perry
Pelletier, George
Penza, Samuel P.
Perricone, Charles S.
Peres, Saul
Petrow, Frank
Pillsbury, John Marshall
Piro, James V.
Pollitt, John K.
Premetak, Aaron Nat
Quigley, Michael J., Jr.
Quinton, John Robert
Rafferty, Jos. Aloysius
Rappaport, Nathan
Reiter, Henry C.
Rinack, Walter
Rindler, Irving N.
Rosenbaum, Lawrence
Rostenberg, Philip
Rosenfeld, Chas. I.
Rosenstein, Maurice
Rosenthal, George
Rotolo, Joseph M.
Rubberton, James
Salandra, Michael Salvin, Edwin
Santucci, Anthony J.
Sauger, Geo. S.
Schaffer, Max
Scheltino, Mario
Schiffman, Morris
Schiller, Kenneth Jacob
Schneck, Henry Paul
Schneiderman, Samuel Schnitser, Michael Schulman, David T.
Schwartz, Samuel
Seligson, Milton
Seymour, Justin Wm.
Shaw, Hilda Marie
Schonholz, Milton
Singer, Philip K.
Sullivan, John Joseph
Sultan, Emanuel Manning
Tannebaum, Arthur
Taube, Isadore
Taylor, Donald P.
Teitelbaum, Rose
Tomas, William John
Tulenko, George
Turetsky, Louis
Usdin, Archie
Van Houten, Eunice
Van Houten, Evelyn A.
Venezio, Louis
Vitale, S. George
Vitallo, Daniel P.
Walevsky, Minus
Waretta, Gabriel
Wasserstrom, Benj.
Weiner, John Z.
Weis, Edward George
Weissman, G.
Wember, George Wernick, Harry
Wertheimer, Harold Lewis
Wertser, David H.
White, Jos. Francis
Winer, Sam A.
Winnik, Belle Ziegenauer, Geraldine G.
Junior Afternoon Class

Sidney Scher
President

Jacob Heller
Vice-President

Edna Gorelick
Secretary

Lloyd J. Kelly
Treasurer

Emil Mintz
Student Council Representative
Junior Afternoon Class History

We came—a motley group. A gregarious group. Threading our way from the four points of the compass—our goal the stately ivory-colored building set into the heart of the city. We came—unthinking of the pill, our eyes held by the bright sugar coating.

A somewhat jocular group, we wended our way. Some strolled along quite nonchalantly. Others strolled along like tourists viewing shrines and mosques uncomprehendingly. Each reduced to pygmy ego by the vastness and undistinguishingness of the masses. We huddled together. Human cattle, human sheep. Out of the need across the Kennedy. We formed the Freshman Afternoon Class, with Earl Bennett, President; Mary Carty, Vice-President; John Reid, Treasurer, and Elise Coopersmith, Secretary.

By diligent, unflagging labor, together with the fine cooperation that has marked every enterprise attempted by the students, we brought to a successful termination the dance the class gave, and which marked the end of the social season for us as Freshmen.

The end of the year found us breathless, hatless, coined, from the fray. We now looked upon the Gothic building in a different light.

We saw—grades upon the examination paper with a premonition of evil and received them with elation, with joy, with sadness, with indifference; trust, confidence or with disgust, the emotion created by the temperance of the receiver.

We saw a sadly depleted group return and enter the ranks as Juniors. The ivory-colored building seemed to smile a welcome upon our return, and, although we came as eagerly as before, our return was less impetuous. Enthusiastic, yes, but we had acquired an earnestness, an impatience to acquire new learning, a feeling of accomplishment and a susceptibility of new attainment. A milestone had been looked forward to and reached, and now another looms ahead. We forge forward with the courage of experience, for had we not compared the Eblis of the unknown once before?

Once again we assembled and looked about with curiosity at our classmates, friends and companions. Profiting by example, we again formed a unit, with Mr. Sher as our leader, our President. Mr. Kelly was elected Vice-President; Miss Gorelick, Secretary; Jacob Heller, Treasurer; and mighty Midget Mintz as Class Representative on the Student Council.

A sub-eye group recalling our deceased Dean, Mr. Mason! A true gentleman and a scholar, he left a vacancy in the school and in our hearts that will never, never be filled by another. We pay tribute to the memory of our friend by the establishment of the Memorial Fund which as a pioneer attempt is worthy in every respect of the man in whose honor we raise it.

WE CONQUERED. We cannot draw aside the misty veil that hides the future, we cannot contemplate, we cannot speculate; but in the passing of the days take that which the Fates may offer.

"What's written in the stars shall be,
The stars control our destiny."

Pauline Epstein '29

Junior Afternoon Class

Adler, Sam
Alvina, Adam
Barth, Emil
Baumgarten, Saul
Bayn, David Silkowski
Beck, Ross Roland
Behr, Leon
Benson, Gardner K.
Bivona, Albert
Bucher, Philip
Blackman, Benjamin
Blair, Charles D.
Blair, Stanley
Bleil, Carl H.
Block, A. Marvin
Block, Emil H.
Bochner, Rober
Bookstaber, Irving
Bonit, Eugene S.
Bozza, D. Samuel
Bradley, Wm. H.
Breen, John
Brescod, Saul
Bruchwelder, John E.
Brody, Jos.
Brown, Harold J.
Burke, Edw. G.
Burke, Norbert T.
Carty, May M.
Clevites, John
Chiodos, Benj.
Cohen, Henry
Cohen, William
Cohen, Wm. J.
Cohn, Edw.
Colamitti, Nicola Jones
Cooper, Sidney
Czies, Alfred Mario
Craig, Grace H.
Crocker, Marshall
Corry, John A.
Czachorowski, Matthew Daitch, Lewis
Dahle, Ruel Edgar

Danzig, Louis
Davenport, Wm. A.
Davis, Jox Miller
Denny, H. Pierce
Dette, David
Dobin, Etta
Dougherty, Frank James
Drogin, Jack
Dulow, Meyer
Dynes, James W.
Eber, Alex
Ehrenfranz, Emanuel
Einsler, Melville A.
Eiserman, Ben
Epstein, Pauline
Ertag, Leo
Ewel, Ralph
Eidelman, Max
Ferguson, Chas. B.
Fielder, Robert E.
Plata, Louis Leon
Flood, Luke T.
Freeman, Albert
Gaulker, Fred H.
Gartfield, Lawrence
Garrinone, Chas. J.
Gish, Lewis
Gholli, August
Guilinelli, Rosco
Giordano, Amadeus
Giordano, Nicholas
Greges, Albin
Goldaksy, Solomon
Goldberg, Anna
Goldberg, Benjamin
Goldberg, George
Goldfarb, Saul L.
Goldstein, Morris
Goldstein, Emanuel M.
Graff, Simon
Gorelick, Edna
Grossman, Henry M.
Guyet, John C.
Hinley, John M.
Haut, Elias D.
Heller, Jacob
Herz, Hubert
Herman, Edward
Hickman, Stanley
Hillenbach, Herman Erb
Hirschkorn, Solomon M.
Hoberman, Hyman
Holstein, Jack L.
Hock, Walter
Hyde, Harry B.
Intorcio, Charles J.
Jacken, Abe
Jacobs, Harold J.
Jacobson, Bernard
James, Henry Frederick
Kalsich, Leonard
Kandel, Saul G.
Kane, Michael M.
Karpinski, Mary J.
Karaskis, Donald
Kaudia, Simon
Kass, Julius
Kaufman, Joseph E.
Kelly, Lloyd J.
Kievitz, Stanley P.
Kolbert, L. Sydney M.
Kopp, Lillian Dorothy
Korn, Charles Krant, Rachel Krant, Rose
Krill, Julius Youl
Kun, Adolph
Kurtz, Sam
Labella, Dominick
Lepree, George
Levance, Arnold A.
Leventon, Maxwell
Levin, Abe
Levitow, Ellis
Ley, Bernard
Le Wine, Irwin
Lewis, Elizabeth
Liberman, Philip Samuel Lish, Harry Lie, Peter
Littauer, Milton H.
Loacker, Sanford
Loughran, Elizabeth
Low, Janice
Lowinger, Emanuel S.
Malanga, John
Mayer, Abe Irving
McCabe, Vincent X.
McDonald, Raymond J.
McDonald, Wilson T.
Milberg, Henry
Mind, Myer Louis
Mintz, Emil R.
Monter, Robert W.
Moran, James Leo
Morro, Maximilian
Murphy, Wm. Eugene
Aytella, L. Irene
Neuwirth, Leo
Nunnebaeum, Philip Geo.
Nuinevick, Alphonso
Norton, Thos. F. Jr.
Parnes, Samuel
Pashman, J. Milton
Peckemik, Harry A.
Picker, Benjamin
Pietrucha, Frank J.
Pigou, Jack A.
Pipi, Pasquale
Piskorski, Louna
Plosnich, Morris B.
Poliakoff, David Potter, Harry
Press, Jack A.
Rabin, Nathan Eisman
Rand, Elsie
Reid, John A
Riekh, Thomas
Riddle, Margaret A.
Rinaldi, Mariano J.
Rosenberger, Louis P.
Roth, Oswald H., Jr.
Rotterman, Harold Rovner, R.
Rudner, Nathan
Samuels, Fred H
Savage, Aarthur Robert
Schneider, Arthur E.
Schneidt, Harold W.
Schneidt, Milton
Schulman, Ab.
Schulman, Saul L.
Sogal, Samuel Edward
Shapira, Ellis
Shapira, Samuel Arthur
Shayman, Rosella Adrienne
Sherr, Sydney
Silver, Lawrence
Silverberg, Sidney
Silverman, Jerome
Silverman, Sanford
Sittin, Max
Staff, Maurice M.
Stavin, James S.
Starkenberg, Abraham J.
Smith, Everett B.
Snoover, Charles F.
Solomon, A. Benj.
Spiegel, Martin M.
Stark, Edward Stern, Irving
Stern, Wilbur A.
Susselman, Jack M.
Swasey, Abraham
Swartz, S.
Szukowski, Michael Talbot, Ellis
Tessler, Benedict
Thompson, Du Bois S.
Thompson, Harold T.
Tilton, Isaac E.

Tombak, Lewis
Torrey, E. J.
Travers, Maurice
Turkenitch, Jack
Van Tine, Ben J., Columbus
Villari, Aurel John
Vitiello, Louis Jos.
Viviers, Paul Alex.
Wacker, Archibald A.
Walsh, Walter
Walters, Ben J.
Washawsky, Martin
Watterson, Wm. Francis
Wegner, John C.
Weinroth, Sylvia
Weinmann, Nathan T.
Weiss, Israel D.
Weil, Hansen, Ernest A.
White, Louis
Whitehouse, Wm. Harold Wilder, Louis Kenneth Winerman, Richard
Winograd, Jacob L.
Wojnowsky, Harry
Yancik, Samuel J.
Zimmerman, Paul
Zlotoff, Frank J.
Zoller, Saul L.
Junior Evening Class History

"To be or not to be, that is the question"

MISTAKE us not, poor terrified reader, we are not in contemplation (either individually or en masse) viewing ourselves as future mannequins for a spirituistic Raphiel, but the controversy seems to be, whether or not to bring to an indubious end an embryo career.

Career! The word recalls the first whispering cry of a new-born ambition. With retrospective eyes we gaze back upon our Freshman days and, dwelling but a few flying moments in memory, return again to the present.

Having no incubator system to carefully nourish and prepare poor, startled, undeveloped brains, we were immediately and uncereemoniously thrust into the Freshman Class.

Veritable Daniels, we faced the lion, and on successive nights other lions, who were, with clever cunning, sent to us as we shook and cowered before their malevolent eyes and terrifying roars. The roar was but the prelude of their bite which we soon felt. But as we pried the tenacious jaws apart and drew their reluctant fangs from our quivering flesh, we realized the bite was but the cruel kindness of the beast’s rough tongue as he licks the wounds of his mate. The hurt was but to warn us of the unseen enemies lurking in the forest we were straining so valiantly to penetrate and the longing to heal the wound.

By skill, courage, daring, craft and cunning we crept and ran and oftimes stumbled through the wilderness; but now, scarred, bruised and dishevelled, many of our companions lost, we gaze with bloodshot eyes at the forest and throwing back our heads we laugh until the echoes come dancing back.

Climbing the first slope of the mountain of our Junior Year with renewed hope and vigor, we look forward to the Senior Sea which lies just over the mountains. Herculean tasks given to Lilliputian warriors who grow with their accomplishments!

We called our fellows around us, for in union there is strength, as we found in our Freshman Year, when Mr. Burke, aided by competent assistants and his own brave courage, led the class through many a stormy battle and heated argument to a very successful close.

Gathering the veterans, we once again held council, and Mr. Burke yielded the sceptre and the sword to Mr. Uslander, our present President. Mr. Reeves was elected Vice-President, Miss Levine Secretary, and Mr. Myers Treasurer.

We took up the march with sadness in our hearts for the loss of our Dean, Mr. Mason, and decided to work staunchly together to raise for him a fitting tribute.

Having decided the weighty matters of state, we now toss away dull care and woe and look eagerly forward to the forthcoming Prom which gives promise of being the most brilliant affair of the season.

The Easter holidays provide an interval of rest (?) and fun and then the grind—hoping—striving—struggling—over the Junior Mountain to the Senior Sea—and across the sea—The Goal!

DOROTHEA EPSTEIN ‘29
Junior Evening Class

Abbott, John V.
Akkus, Mitchell J.
Aiken, David J.
Akers, Anthony Thomas
Aronsohn, Louis C.
Aisley, Samuel J.
Baker, George J.
Bard, Albert J.
Barrett, John Franklin
Baumgarten, Saul
Bauer, Francis S.
Becker, Harry M.
Bell, Robert Kenneth Bellafonte, Horace S.
Berger, Max
Bergman, Harold
Bernstein, Joseph S.
Bernstein, Elliot
Beres, Jacob
Berrett, Harry Blumenthal, Moses
Bokser, Leo
Bodnar, Samuel H.
Blumenthal, Jacob
Boltin, Beatrice
Borak, Joseph
Briem, nestor Jerome
Brolsler, Charles
Breuer, George A.
Brief, Herman
Brief, Philip
Brownstein, Alexander
Burke, John V.
Burns, Harry
Cameron, Thomas V.
Calentoun, Morris
Chaitowitz, Meyer
Charles, Robert A.
Chodos, Joseph
Christman, Murr
Clawson, Helen Cohen, Harry
Cohen, Hyman
Cohn, Morris
Cohn, Milton
Cohn, Harry
Cohn, Morris
Collier, George J.
Copper, Garret
Cooper, Smith, Lucy
Costantini, Aldo
Courter, George H.
Culley, Edward
Debreceny, Victor
Devore, Edward
Diamond, Harry Jack
Dinero, Sebastion T.
Dwoskin, Louis
Dobrow, Isaiah
Dohncue, Joc. F.
Domonkos, Robert Doskow, Harry
Douglas, Grant V.
Eckert, George
Edelman, Ida
Edelman, Jerry Hyman
Ede, Ed
Ehrenberg, S.
Ellin, Bertha
Epstein, Dorotha
Epstein, Toby J.
Fagan, Edward L.
Fay, Peter Joseph
Feit, Jacob
Feldman, Lucian
Feld, Elia M.
Ferber, John H.
Ferber, Lewis Paul
Fischman, Bernard
Fisher, Joseph N.
Frank, Jacob
Frankel, Sidney Sheldon
Friedman, Samuel
Friedman, Robert
Fruchter, Joseph
Galan, Bette Z.
Gilsen, Edwin L.
Ginsburg, Marvin
Glass, Harold Glatstein, Arthur
Glickstein, David
Glod, Alfred
Goldberg, Joseph
Goldberg, Sidney Gruner
Goldman, Jacob Morton
Goodstein, Jacob
Gorlin, Harry
Gottfried, Hyman
Gowen, George Stanley
Green, William
Greenberg, Max M.
Greenberg, William
Greenwald, Paul
Grissom, Salvatore I.
Grundman, Morris
Gurney, David U.
Gurtov, Sidney
Harad, Herman
Harrin, George
Haug, Henry J.
Hoff, Maxwell J.
Heller, Harry X.
Heller, Herschel
Herbert, Joc. Stanley
Herzlinger, Frank
Hiltzki, David
Hochman, Sam
Hodgkin, Powell L.
Horneff, E.
Hourihan, Wm. Patrick
Insinni, Philip G.
Jacobsberg, Gerald
Jacobs, P. Philip
Jacobson, Charles
Jaffe, Harry Aaron
Johnson, Frank J.
Jordon, Salvador M.
Jochnow, Wm.
Jussenchek, Jos. V.
Kagan, Georgio M.
Kalat, Harry Kaminowa, Fred
Kantor, Ben J.
Kaplan, Jos. L.
Kaplan, Samuel
Katen, Herman A.
Kaufman, Lazarus Irving
Kneenally, Francis X.
Kestler, Leon S.
Kirk, Eugene J.
Klein, Max
Klemens, Jos. P.
Klitzman, Abraham
Koltun, Charles
Kornisky, Robert
Kosky, Irving E.
Koter, John J.
Kroff, Jacob
Kraemer, Jerome
Kraus, Hyman
Krekhoff, Roselle M.
Kroghoff, Max
Kronsky, Beni. B.
Krubelitiz, Harold Maurice
Kuczinski, Wm. J.
Kwist, David
Lackoff, John C.
Lasher, Milton Thomas
Lazowick, Max S.
Lebowitz, Walter
Leigh, Geo. W.
Leibcr, Jack
Levine, Ruth
Levy, Jos. W.
Lewin, Lewis
Lieber, Meyer
Linn, Nathan David
Lubman, Mortimer
Ludwig, Arthur
Lutz, Walter L.
Malovany, David M.
Mard, Harry M.
Mansfield, Leah
Marx, Maxwell
Mattias, Allen C.
McCarthy, Francis J.
McGoveren, George
McKay, Chas. J.
McKimm, Clarence R.
McLeod, James H.
McNally, Geo. Lee
Henry, Edw. D.
Merchant, Jos. Emery
Merrifield, Benj.
Meyer, Erwin
Meyer, Paul Joseph
Mithauer, Louis
Milgarten, Morris
Miller, Samuel
Minot, Irwin
Minsky, Samuel
Minsky, Aaron
Moss, Erwin
Moserowicz, Beni. Edw.
Mountier, Louis A., Jr.
Myers, Clifford J.
Nevins, Frances
Nelms, Zeman
Newman, Joseph
Freshman Morning Class

Oswald G. Nelson
President

William Ryan
Vice-President

Beatrice Bohner
Secretary

Charles B. Mason
Student Council Representative
Freshman Morning Class History

Just freshmen! How often that phrase has come to students beginning study in higher institutions of learning and dampened their attitude toward outside activities. New Jersey Law School, however, carries a far different aspect of first year life. An interest in extra-curricular and curricular activities was immediately noticeable to members of the Freshman Morning Class who started their law careers some eight months ago.

Coming as they did qualified and prepared for the study of law, the Morning Fresh adapted themselves to the swing of things and developed a hungry appetite for activity. The making of new acquaintance leaning toward the now prevalent co-operative spirit occupied the first week in N. J. L. It was not long before the elections were announced and the campaign that followed was characteristic of all true political operations.

After a few days of industrious canvassing Oswald (Ozzy) Nelson carried off the presidential honors, with William Ryan as Vice-President, Beatrice Bohrer as Secretary, Mario Massa as Treasurer, and Charles B. Mason as a representative to the Student Council. This combination has proved in every respect a successful one, having maintained complete harmony and having conducted the business of the organization along progressive lines.

Not to be daunted by the experience of their predecessors in the field of journalistic enterprise, the class members were able to offer several names for enrollment on the staff of the Barrier. Charles B. Mason is at present make-up editor, while Charles J. Tyne holds down one of the associate editorships. Both men have marked their endeavors with success.

When the call came for debating, the Freshman Morning Class, with seven contestants, was well represented in the tryouts. In the final analysis the writer of this story was chosen as a speaker on the varsity team, taking part in the Princeton debate.

In response to a solicitation for donations to the Mason Memorial Fund the class contributed generously in a display of fine spirit, so that it may be of service to those who are deserving and at the same time be instrumental in perpetuating the name of one who gave his all for the Law School. Although many members of the Freshman Morning Class were not fortunate enough to know the late Dean Mason, they have come to realize the real significance of his work.

Much will be heard of this class group through its remaining years at the Law School. From all indications it will be one of the most active of classes during the next two years. In all respects it will be willing, it will stand ready to do those things of which New Jersey Law School can indeed feel proud.

Vincent Carlson '30

[212]
Freshman Afternoon Class

Joseph Weisberg
President

Martin Auerbach
Vice-President

Miriam Betelman
Secretary

Erwin F. Corriston
Student Council Representative

[215]
History of Freshman Afternoon Class, 1927–28

The records of New Jersey Law School show that on or about October 3rd, 1927, one hundred and thirty-seven seats in the old Senior Room were reserved for the members of the Freshman Class, Afternoon Division, of 1927. Of the one hundred and thirty-seven, practically all were young men and only a handful were girls; all could, however, lay claim to one common qualification, the fact that they had had at least a year’s college training, being necessary for admission. For this reason the number of prospective graduates of 1930 was not as great as it might otherwise have been, but, to voice the thought of the Faculty itself, the value of the Freshmen as legal timber was all the more enhanced.

Not all the Freshmen were strangers to the ideals and routine of New Jersey Law School. Three-fourths of them had weathered the storm of the first Pre-Legal course. The sessions of this class, which was formed to give its members first-year college training and thus to prepare them for the Law School, began in February, 1927, and continued right through the summer season, so that the first Pre-Legal group was ready for actual law study at the beginning of the present term.

The Pre-Legal course gave those who took it an advantage over the other Freshmen at the opening of the 1927–28 term, because, during the last semester, they had their first taste of law under the tutelage of Professors Harris and Tyree. Those two gentlemen, with the legal primer for Freshmen as their only text-book, opened slightly the door that leads to the career of law and explained the why and wherefore of some of the fascinating subjects that could be seen beyond the portal. And so it was that the unworldly clothes of some of the babies of the law had been partially replaced with more mature garments when they appeared at law school ready to tackle the all-intriguing and non-exhausting subjects of contracts, torts, personal property, crimes and common law pleading.

The strangeness of those who came from other colleges to become New Jersey Law School Freshmen wore away quickly as they rubbed elbows with their neighbors at the “one-arm” desks in the class room. The small size of the group made it easier for a friendly feeling to be absorbed in. It was while this spirit was being engendered that the election of officers was held. Mr. Hunsaker had charge of the election and, under his direction, the candidates told what experience they had had for the offices they wished to fill. The result was as follows:

President, Joseph Weisberg; Vice-President, Martin Auerbach; Treasurer, Abraham Landa; Secretary, Miriam Bittelman. Edwin Corrinson was elected Student Council Representative.

The first semester passed with seemingly unprecedented speed. On arrival at the date mark which identified the end of the first and the beginning of the new semester, examinations were in order. Only two subjects, personal property and crimes, were presented. “Lucky!” said some students; others were not so sure. They borrowed trouble and looked apprehensively at the finals facing them in the spring. The year 1928 brought with it two new subjects, real property and domestic relations, the former taught by Professor Song and the latter by Professor Wilkinson.

The second semester was like unto the first, only more so. Class meetings were interesting and, during the latter part of the term, were productive of plans for a “Prompt,” to which the Freshmen had an opportunity of bringing their friends. It should be stated that the class had among its members several young and charming ladies who anxiously are looking forward to careers of law. Judging from the attention accorded them by some of the earnest young Freshmen, however, they are in danger of landing on a speedier road to matrimony.

But by that as it may, the Afternoon Freshmen have gone through their first year together like a sizable family. They have been fortunate enough to avoid the formation of cliques, and, accordingly, are anticipating in the years to come a continuance of the pleasant associations that have marked their studies in New Jersey Law School thus far along the way to success.

THOMAS MARDIGAN ‘30

Freshman Afternoon Class

alpen, sydney
auerbach, martin
bakanian, charles r.
bartolo, charles s.
bartolo, charles e.
bartolo, charles r.
bartolo, charles e.

ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john

The records of New Jersey Law School show that on or about October 3rd, 1927, one hundred and thirty-seven seats in the old Senior Room were reserved for the members of the Freshman Class, Afternoon Division, of 1927. Of the one hundred and thirty-seven, practically all were young men and only a handful were girls; all could, however, lay claim to one common qualification, the fact that they had had at least a year’s college training, being necessary for admission. For this reason the number of prospective graduates of 1930 was not as great as it might otherwise have been, but, to voice the thought of the Faculty itself, the value of the Freshmen as legal timber was all the more enhanced.

Not all the Freshmen were strangers to the ideals and routine of New Jersey Law School. Three-fourths of them had weathered the storm of the first Pre-Legal course. The sessions of this class, which was formed to give its members first-year college training and thus to prepare them for the Law School, began in February, 1927, and continued right through the summer season, so that the first Pre-Legal group was ready for actual law study at the beginning of the present term.

The Pre-Legal course gave those who took it an advantage over the other Freshmen at the opening of the 1927–28 term, because, during the last semester, they had their first taste of law under the tutelage of Professors Harris and Tyree. Those two gentlemen, with the legal primer for Freshmen as their only text-book, opened slightly the door that leads to the career of law and explained the why and wherefore of some of the fascinating subjects that could be seen beyond the portal. And so it was that the unworldly clothes of some of the babies of the law had been partially replaced with more mature garments when they appeared at law school ready to tackle the all-intriguing and non-exhausting subjects of contracts, torts, personal property, crimes and common law pleading.

The strangeness of those who came from other colleges to become New Jersey Law School Freshmen wore away quickly as they rubbed elbows with their neighbors at the “one-arm” desks in the class room. The small size of the group made it easier for a friendly feeling to be absorbed in. It was while this spirit was being engendered that the election of officers was held. Mr. Hunsaker had charge of the election and, under his direction, the candidates told what experience they had had for the offices they wished to fill. The result was as follows:

President, Joseph Weisberg; Vice-President, Martin Auerbach; Treasurer, Abraham Landa; Secretary, Miriam Bittelman. Edwin Corrinson was elected Student Council Representative.

The first semester passed with seemingly unprecedented speed. On arrival at the date mark which identified the end of the first and the beginning of the new semester, examinations were in order. Only two subjects, personal property and crimes, were presented. “Lucky!” said some students; others were not so sure. They borrowed trouble and looked apprehensively at the finals facing them in the spring. The year 1928 brought with it two new subjects, real property and domestic relations, the former taught by Professor Song and the latter by Professor Wilkinson.

The second semester was like unto the first, only more so. Class meetings were interesting and, during the latter part of the term, were productive of plans for a “Prompt,” to which the Freshmen had an opportunity of bringing their friends. It should be stated that the class had among its members several young and charming ladies who anxiously are looking forward to careers of law. Judging from the attention accorded them by some of the earnest young Freshmen, however, they are in danger of landing on a speedier road to matrimony.

But by that as it may, the Afternoon Freshmen have gone through their first year together like a sizable family. They have been fortunate enough to avoid the formation of cliques, and, accordingly, are anticipating in the years to come a continuance of the pleasant associations that have marked their studies in New Jersey Law School thus far along the way to success.

THOMAS MARDIGAN ‘30

Freshman Afternoon Class

alpen, sydney
auerbach, martin
bakanian, charles r.
bartolo, charles s.
bartolo, charles e.
bartolo, charles r.
bartolo, charles e.

ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john
ferris, jr., john

The records of New Jersey Law School show that on or about October 3rd, 1927, one hundred and thirty-seven seats in the old Senior Room were reserved for the members of the Freshman Class, Afternoon Division, of 1927. Of the one hundred and thirty-seven, practically all were young men and only a handful were girls; all could, however, lay claim to one common qualification, the fact that they had had at least a year’s college training, being necessary for admission. For this reason the number of prospective graduates of 1930 was not as great as it might otherwise have been, but, to voice the thought of the Faculty itself, the value of the Freshmen as legal timber was all the more enhanced.

Not all the Freshmen were strangers to the ideals and routine of New Jersey Law School. Three-fourths of them had weathered the storm of the first Pre-Legal course. The sessions of this class, which was formed to give its members first-year college training and thus to prepare them for the Law School, began in February, 1927, and continued right through the summer season, so that the first Pre-Legal group was ready for actual law study at the beginning of the present term.

The Pre-Legal course gave those who took it an advantage over the other Freshmen at the opening of the 1927–28 term, because, during the last semester, they had their first taste of law under the tutelage of Professors Harris and Tyree. Those two gentlemen, with the legal primer for Freshmen as their only text-book, opened slightly the door that leads to the career of law and explained the why and wherefore of some of the fascinating subjects that could be seen beyond the portal. And so it was that the unworldly clothes of some of the babies of the law had been partially replaced with more mature garments when they appeared at law school ready to tackle the all-intriguing and non-exhausting subjects of contracts, torts, personal property, crimes and common law pleading.

The strangeness of those who came from other colleges to become New Jersey Law School Freshmen wore away quickly as they rubbed elbows with their neighbors at the “one-arm” desks in the class room. The small size of the group made it easier for a friendly feeling to be absorbed in. It was while this spirit was being engendered that the election of officers was held. Mr. Hunsaker had charge of the election and, under his direction, the candidates told what experience they had had for the offices they wished to fill. The result was as follows:

President, Joseph Weisberg; Vice-President, Martin Auerbach; Treasurer, Abraham Landa; Secretary, Miriam Bittelman. Edwin Corrinson was elected Student Council Representative.

The first semester passed with seemingly unprecedented speed. On arrival at the date mark which identified the end of the first and the beginning of the new semester, examinations were in order. Only two subjects, personal property and crimes, were presented. “Lucky!” said some students; others were not so sure. They borrowed trouble and looked apprehensively at the finals facing them in the spring. The year 1928 brought with it two new subjects, real property and domestic relations, the former taught by Professor Song and the latter by Professor Wilkinson.
Freshman Evening Class

WALTER L. DAVIS
President

L. E. TROPP
Vice-President

GEORGE V. SABRON
Treasurer

MINNIE EDALSSON
Secretary

EDWARD C. MOFFITT
Student Council Representative

[219]
On Monday, October 3rd, 1927, we began. One hundred and seventy-three freshmen, determined to make our marks in the profession of law, we took our pens in hand, and made our start—1930 of New Jersey Law School.

Approximately half of us from the first Pro-legal Class, and the rest from various other avenues of life, we immediately embarked on a program to consolidate the class as one, in spirit. Our first class meeting, held under the auspices of the Student Council, was the occasion of nominations for class officers. The subsequent elections resulted in success for the following candidates: President, Walter L. Davis; Vice-President, Leon E. Tropp; Treasurer, George V. Sampson; Secretary, Mildred S. Edelson.

Under this administration, much has been accomplished. We petitioned the Governor of New Jersey in endowment of the name of Professor Chalmers when the latter was mentioned as a possible appointee to a judgeship in the State.

On March 31st, at the Hotel Riviera we ran our first social event of the year, a class dance. Here an excellent orchestra contributed toward putting those who attended in a more enjoyable mood, and a perfect time was had by everyone. The dance was further successful, in that it left the class more unified in every way. This result is sure to be most beneficial to the best interests of the class and the school, and the Social Committee deserved the honest congratulations extended to it.

1930 has been further fortunate in having so large a number of our classmate engaged in various activities. We have had our members turn out in large numbers for all variety activities. We have a representative in the Debating Team, Harry Becker. Our President and others are on the board of the Barristers. We have several representatives on the Library staff.

We have profited greatly by our first year at New Jersey Law School. We are more pleased with our excelsis. Faculty and hope they are as satisfied as we. They have made a notable task enjoyable and deserve the utmost praise for their untiring and, we hope, fruitful efforts. They have been mainly responsible for our being able to look back in pleasant retrospection and, as we leave our delightful Freshman year, we are looking forward eagerly to our Junior and Senior terms.

I. Bernard Hausky '30